BOB & ROB

DESARROLLADORES DE SOFTWARE

Rob, have you ever seen code so horrible that you'll want to stab the author until your arm gets sore?

Not really...

Hmmm... ops...

Then this is going to be more weird for you than what I initially thought.

Shouldn't have abused those if-else!

@koopaconan - htzcomic.com

It's clear now... Always together and in the same line...

Now please, I think it's enough already...

And... No! No! Leave that welder,please... It's clear now! I swear! Together and in the same line! Please stop!

No! No! Turn it off! Together and in the same line! You see? I understand now! I've never thought about it! But now I know!

Together... and in the same line... please...

Together and in the same line ... Together... always... Put it away... I'll never code again the brackets in different lines... I'll put them close to the if, while or any function... But... But... Sto....

AAAARGHHHHHH!

- Coding standards
- Length = 500
- Don’t dictate, ask why
- Readability

- No PR longer than 2 days
- Slack, slack, slack…
- //TODO //FIX
- Overuse :+1:

Focus on readability, maintainability, focus on what the code tries to achieve

- Step Christopher - Big Nerd Ranch

Try to focus on the person that wrote the code. What is his style & knowledge and adapt to it.

- @hpique - Facebook

I try to leave space to the person and expect a good job. Ask questions don’t do accusations.

- @SantiagoPinaRos - Facebook

Code review is an async version of pair programming

Too many people discussing on a PR is not productive.

Keep architecture out of the discussion

- @daniel1of1 - Evil (purple) Imp

PR to master

Tag people that are involved on the project, at least two team members up until all team

Two different phases, review to start tests, review to merge

- @mennenia - SwiftKey

Randomly assign people to review PR's, force people to learn all codebase

- @purpleyay - PlanGrid

Please Merge
